WE SEE THIS TRACK AS A CHALLENGE BECAUSE IT IS THE MOST UNDULATING OF THE SEASON

We are very happy to return to the Brno circuit. Not only is it a beautiful venue, it is also a race weekend where fans come from all over Europe, from both East and West, and where the show is always intense. From a technical standpoint, we see this track as a challenge because it is the most undulating of the season, with impressive elevation changes. Moreover, since the asphalt has been completely redone, we have very little data on its properties. Two teams have conducted tests there and reported good grip and a smooth surface, but we still lack feedback on the thermal behaviour of the track, whose dark nature should promote heat retention. To prepare our tire package, we also looked at data from a similar profile circuit, such as Mugello in Italy. Between this pre-race analysis and the crucial Friday tests, we believe our partners will find the right combination to perform.
