MICHELIN Guide: consequences of the conflict in Ukraine

Given the severity of the current crisis, the MICHELIN Guide teams have made the decision to suspend all restaurant recommendation activities in Russia.

In this context, we have made the choice not to promote Moscow as a destination. As a result, the Moscow selection will not be updated this year and the MICHELIN Guide's development projects in Russia have been put on ice for the time being.

In addition, publications about the restaurants of the Moscow selection on our social networks, website, and app have also been put on hold.

In no way do these decisions call into question the talent of the teams and chefs of the 69 restaurants honored last October.
